

Photo Series DRAFT
Andrea Mendoza
Work-in-Progress
December 28, 2016

“ Cilia ”

Cilium, Latin for eyelashes, those extensions that tell stories about the beauty of the one who carries them... expand, extend and sometimes go even out of the reach of the primal source, the sea, and eventually, return to it.

These Cilium in particular, came out of the frozen waters of Northern Iceland (Isafjörður) to tell a story of a dance, in time. A story of water and sand. Every morning forms alike will be seen resting on the beach, after a whole night of perseverant dance.

Cilia then, is the prolongation of the beauty of the sea, that we all carry within.

Andrea Mendoza

Former advertiser with studies in Marine Biology, semiotics, psychoanalysis and writing. PhD on Design for Sustainability from Milan Polytechnic. At present is devoted to narrations that comprise social or environmental issues, from the documentarian view point.